LOCAL AND COUNTY NEWS.

FAIR ASSOCIATION.

One of our enterprising farmers has been endeavoring for some weeks past to get in shape a project for the establishment of an agricultural and mechanical fair association. That such an association, holding annual fairs in this county, would prove of great benefit to the live stock interests and to farmers, generally, no one can doubt for a moment; but that the undertaking can be made a success is quite another thing. Money will have to be subscribed and paid over before any tangible result is gained, and a large portion of our people are not educated to that point to see any advantage in public expenditure no matter how large the returns are. The fact that the benefits will be general will deter very many from encouraging any project. The great struggle with too many of our people is for the attainment of comparative instead of positive results—small returns when confined to the individual rather than larger ones when shared by the community. To be more plain let us ask: How many men are there in Lincoln county who would prefer a given amount as the result of the year's toil and calculation, if this were the only instance of gain in the community, to ten times that amount when every person were equally fortunate? We more than suspect that here may be found the key to the solution of the question so often asked in our midst why such enterprises cannot be created and sustained. This is not the spirit that builds up and strengthens and beautifies a country. The field for development in our county is a most inviting one. Natural advantages and resources that cannot be surpassed are comparatively valueless. What good do they accomplish for us if by our own inexcusable negligence we allow other and less favored counties to outstrip us? The practical results of a well organized association of this kind are very generally recognized and appreciated, but action aided and encouraged by an enlightened and discriminating public spirit is necessary to secure them.

Lost.

Between Troy and Chanilly, on the Troy and Cap-au-Gris road, on the 23d of September, a pocket-book, containing about twelve hundred dollars in notes and accounts. Any one finding the above and returning the same to me will be liberally rewarded. [n4418] WM. SIMPSON.

Millinery.

Madam L. Thomas has just returned from St. Louis with a first-class stock of millinery, and would respectfully solicit the people in and around Troy to call and examine her goods before purchasing elsewhere. All kinds of millinery and dress-making done to order. 1w.

THE GRANGE MANUFACTORY.

The board of directors for the state grange manufactory, appointed in district convention last June, made a report at the late session of the state grange, informing that body of the abandonment of the original purpose for which the directory was constituted. The reasons for this determination, as given in this long and able report, are such as will be satisfactory to every considerate patron in the state. The object to be accomplished, as indicated by the state grange in its first session, was the establishment of a single factory for making agricultural implements, to be managed entirely by the board of directors and operated by a capital of one hundred thousand dollars, which was to be subscribed by individual granges. From the first there existed in the minds of many patrons grave doubts as to the feasibility of the undertaking. Our readers will remember that at the district convention for this district, which met at Mexico, the sentiment was very largely against confining the efforts of the grange to a single factory. However, in the meeting of the directory, which took place shortly after its election, the original intention was maintained and it was decided to locate the factory at Boonville. At the adjourned meeting, on the 4th of last August, the expected subscriptions had not been made. Nothing daunted, the directors set themselves earnestly to work to promote the success of the proposed scheme. In the prosecution of their labors many negotiations and conferences were had with experienced manufacturers and business men. In consequence of new light thus received, the expediency of the whole matter was thoroughly investigated by the directors and the result was as stated above. The considerations by which they were influenced, and which they are satisfied prevented further subscriptions to capital stock, we condense from the lengthy report. Such enterprises are only successful when managed by keen, sharp, shrewd business men, who devote to it all their personal skill, energy and watchfulness. The proposed institution would be under the control of directors scattered all over the state, rendering necessary much travel and expense for meetings and consultations. The labor is not so reliable nor so cheap as when controlled by individuals. The want of experienced management in the directory, besides subjecting it to much greater expense, renders it impossible to properly meet the usual difficulties. The buildings may be ill-planned or unnecessary; the machinery, tools and raw machinery may not come up to the standard in quality, while the prices paid for them may be much above the market. If the proposed enterprise be so fortunate as to escape all these, it would still be very far from the consummation. An obstacle next presents itself which may be considered insurmountable. Every kind of machinery is patented and thousands of dollars will have to be paid for the privilege of making what the farmer needs. After making these outlays the machinery, of which the exclusive right to manufacture is thus dearly bought, might in a short time become practically useless, by reason of improvements elsewhere. And, again, the judgment of the patrons may not coincide with that of the directors in the selection of the various patents and consequently unsaleable machines may accumulate. As if these reasons were not enough, another is given—that the proposed capital was not sufficient to enable the factory to meet the demands of the patrons in the state. Having arrived at the conclusion that they started out on the wrong system, the directors looked about for an adequate remedy for the state of affairs that led to the inception of the contemplated design. They recommended the contract system as most likely to meet the wants of the patrons in this state. Recognizing as good grange doctrine that the "laborer is worthy of his hire," they think it prudent policy not to endeavor the destruction of the reasonable and fair remuneration of the manufacturer. The exorbitant charges allowed by monopoly and the exactions of the conscienceless "middle-men" are the abuses that may be legitimately restrained, and if these can be accomplished without taking the risk of business failure they consider that all has been gained that could be reasonably desired. Wisdom and experience dictate as the true policy to induce manufacturers to come among us with their skill and capital, and for us to encourage them by our combined patronage to throw all their talents and energies into manufacturing everything that the patrons need, in large quantities, and selling to them at the lowest prices. Here is, argued by authority, the point for which we have always contended—the advantage and expediency of home manufacturers. We hope that this expression may have much to do in shaping the sentiment of the intelligent farmers of Lincoln county.

Our genial old friend, Jas. D. Brown, Esq., returned a few days ago, from California, after several months spent in that state. His health is remarkably good and he thinks he has been much benefitted by the change of scene. His familiar appearance on our streets is suggestive of pleasant memories. We are glad to have him back again and hope he will adhere to his determination not to return to California.

A "young widow" of forty-eight sued an old widower some years her senior for breach of promise, and obtained one thousand dollars to soothe her wounded heart. The case was Elizabeth Brooks vs. Mathias Vachil, and Lawrenceburg, Ind., was the place.

CREMATION.—Our Berlin correspondent, says the London Times, of the 11th, writes under date of yesterday: "The body of Lady Dilke, who died five weeks ago at London, was burned on the 10th instant, at Dresden. The ceremony was performed in the furnace recently invented for burial purposes by Herr Siemens, and the relatives of the deceased lady permitting strangers to be present, a large number of scientific men attended the experiment. When the company had complied with Herr Siemens' request to offer up a mental prayer, the coffin was placed in the chamber of the furnace; six minutes later the coffin burst; five minutes more and the flesh began to melt away; ten minutes more and the skeleton was laid bare; another ten minutes and the bones began to crumble. Seventy-five minutes after the introduction of the coffin into the furnace all that remained of Lady Dilke and the coffin were six pounds of dust placed in an urn. The brother-in-law of the deceased was present."

The provisions in the ark did not give out. They had as much Ham at the end of the voyage as when they started.

Flannels, cassimeres and jeans very cheap. WOOLFOLK & GORDON.
